THE WEEK IN SOCIETY.

A LITTLE REST BEFORE THE WHIRL BEGINS IN EARNEST.

This is certainly a restful period for actively fashion people, who are doubtless gaining strength for the season to come, which must be a short and therefore busy one, as Lent begins early, Ash Wednesday falling on February to. The dates of the subscription balls have been announced, but those best informed on social matters can state nothing definite in regard to rivate balls and dances. Without doubt Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and Mrs. W. D. Sloane will give handsome dances, as they have for the last two years, and it is said that Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Vanderbilt, who superb ball in their Newport house last mmer, will entertain extensively. Ex-Secretary and Mrs. Whitney will spend the winter in town for the four years, and as the ball-room of their house, at Fifth-ave. and Fifty-seventh-st., has been enlarged and redecorated, there seems to be every assurance of a ball in that hospitable mansion. Miss Flora Davis, the only daughter of John H. Davis, of ngton Square, is to be formally introduced to society next month, and for her a small dance and a ball will be given, but whether at some outside ballom or at her father's house has not yet been decided.

The subscriptions for the New-Year's ball are coming well and Mr. McAllister expects to have 150 subscribers at $100 each, so that # promises with $15,000 to be a very gorgeous affair. The announcement that take place was first made in this eks ago. The list of subscribers in cludes the names of J. J. Astor, Cornelius Vanderbilt, N. A. Griswold, W. It is expected that fully 1,200 ple will be present, and that the largest cotfilon in the history of New-York balls will be danced, probably umbering more than 100 couples. Possibly there will

The monotonous quiet of the last week had nothing to interest the devotees of a gay life but the wedding Florence Hurst and J. Borden Harriman, ne of the sons of Oliver Harriman. The disagreeable cather of Wednesday did not in the least dampen spirits of the bridal party or the guests who as embled in St. Thomas's Church. The engagement has been recently announced of Miss Mabe! Sands, daughter of Mahlon Sands by his first marriage, to Clarence G. Sinclair, enlest son of Sir John Shelair, Bart. The wedding is to take place some time before Christmas. Miss Sands's prospective lather-in-law has a fine country seat, Thurso Castle, Caithness, and owns as well the Chateau de la Bocca, at Cannes. The Sinciair family is descended from one of the Earls of Caithness, who lived in 1570. Miss Sands's mother was a Miss Minturn, of New-York, who left a handsome fortune for her daughter. Her father was thrown from his horse while riding in Hyde Park two years ago.

The engagement is also announced of Miss Cunard, the only unmarried sister of Sir Bache Cunard, who has many relatives in New-York, to Athol Hay, a son of the late Sir Robert Hay, and a nephew of William Butter Duffican, of New-York. Mr. Hay is one of the most enterprising of the Texas ranchers.

CONCERT OF THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY

The concert with which the Philharmonic Society began its forty-eighth season last night at the Metro-politan Opera House capitally exemplified what ought to be looked upon as the true purposes of such an organization. The programme contained only noble music (overlooking for the moment a question raised by the solo number), such as had proved its right to a place in the scheme of a society devoted to the con-servation of compositions calculated to refine and dignify taste and strengthen opposition to the meretricious. And this, too, was the influence which went out from the sustained and equable performance of the orchestra. A warmer passion, and readings market with sharper accentuations, might, it is true, have been imagined for the Symphony which opened the concert (Schumann's in E flat, generally called the "Rhenish" by musicians) and the symphonic poem which brought it to an end (Liszt's "Preludes"); but, on the whole, the playing of the band was beautifully strong, and inspired that feeling of contentment and gratitude which a Philharmonic concert in-vites more frequently than any of the other musical entertainments to which the people of New-York are invited. As for the intermediate orchestral numbers, Dvorak's Scherzo Capric close served to show to what a pitch of technical ice Mr. Thomas can bring a band that meets for practice much too infrequently, while the exquibeauty of the variations from Schubert's string Quartet in D minor, stole apon the sense of the an site beauty of the variations from Schubert's string Quariet in D minor, stole apon the sense of the audience and crept into their souls like a benediction. It was an evening of lofty artistic pleasures.

The solo attraction of the concert was Rubinstein's planoforte concerto in G major, played by Miss Adele Aus der Ohe. The work had not been heard here since Mr. Carl Faelten played it at one of Mr. Thomas's concerts in December, 1885, and was a welcome addition to the small list of concertos to which planists persist selfishly in devoting themselves. So much can be said for it without committing one's self to an expression of belief in its absolute musical beauty or significance. It has a peculiar physionnemy and its rhapsodical and somewhat disjointed character is not entirely accounted for even by the dramatic programme which Rubinstein gave it when he played it years ago at the Academy of Music. Miss Aus der Ohe's style is not fill-adapted to it, for it exacts dash and mechanical brilliancy rather than internal warmth, and these qualities were present in generous abundance in the performance last night, especially in the last movement, which Miss Aus der Ohe gave with splendid fire and an audacious tempo calculated to carry all criticism off its feet. She was rewarded generously with applause by an audience splendid in point of number and character.

The pack of fourteen dogs that chased the fox this morning were found this evening at Hilbernia, the fox having escaped the hounds.

The Governing Committee of the Union Club has sent a reply to the petition of some 150 members of the club that the blackballing of John King, president of the Eric Railroad, be reconsidered. The committee, by Lawrene. Wells, acting president, and Franklin Bartlett, s c retary of the club, writes that it cannot act upon th petition now, as Mr. King's name is at the bottom of peuton now, as Mr. King's name is at the cottom of the list of 300 applications for membership, it hav-ing been withdrawn and afterward put before the committee again. The committee does not feel at liberty to violate the unwritten law of the club that applications for membership be acted on in their regular order. It is said that there is much indigna-tion against the committee, and that an attempt will be made to turn its members out of office at the elec-tion next spring.

One of the far West Indian agents was at the Tremont House the other day. He did not look like an Indian agent. He didn't wear long hair and carry guns in a wampum belt. On the centrary he was dressed like a tallor's model. When asked as to the present condition of the gentle savage he unbosomed himself as follows: "The Indian is to all intents and purposes a dalsy. To know him thoroughly you must reside in his vicinity. The height of his ambition is to acquire a 'jag' which shall be the envy of his fellows. We are not allowed to sell him liquor from our bountiful store for the simple Teason that we are not allowed to sell 'booze' to the redskin. But he seems to get there just the same, and he gets full on cologne or stomach bitters. My experience has led me to observe the various effects of the different odors. Now, 'llly of the valley' gives an Indian a romantic 'tide,' while 'white rose' leaves him in a trance for days. The most lasting odor seems to be the 'forget-me-not,' and an Indian who gets loaded on that brand has cause to remember the fact for days afterward. PREPARATIONS AT THE METROPOLITAN.

CHANGES AMONG THE BOX-HOLDERS - OPERAS

FOR HERR REICHMANN. German opera season is close at hand preparations for it are going on in the liveliest way. both before and behind the curtain. There are decided ndications, too, that the season will be an uncommonly amount this year to $6,000 or $7,000 more than car, and this in itself points most emphatically to the growing popularity of German opera as presented at the Metropolitan Opera House. The list of box-holders for the season that has been prepared shows a few changes, but it is in the main like the list of last The changes are shown by the following select tion from the table of boxes and the holders of them:

5. George Henry Warren, William C. Schermerhorn, Monday; Egerton Winthrop, Friday.

Nearly all the important singers are in town, though two are now on the ocean and another will not sail for this country till the last of the month. Frau Lilli Lehmann-Kalisch arrived on the Trave on Friday in good health and voice and ready for the work the winter. The season opens, as has been already announced, on November 27, with ner's "The Flying Dutchman." The includes Charlotte Huhn, Sophie W announced, on Wiesner, Emil Fischer, Paul Kalisch, Albert Mittelhauser, and Theodor Reichmann. On November 29 Goldmark's "The Queen of Sheba" will be sung with Charlotte Huhn, Frau Lill Lenmann-Kallsch, Sophie Wiesner, Joseph Beck, Conrad Behrens, Julius Perotti and Edward Schloemann in the cast. This will be followed by a repetition of "The Flying Dutchman" on the afternoon of November 30, "The Queen of heba" on December 2, " Don Glovanni" on December 4 and "Il Trovatore" on December 6.

The presence of Herr Reichmann in the company eems to have had a pronounced effect upon the repertory of the season. It is doubtless due to him that the season will be opened with " The Flying Dutchman" and that " Don Glovanni" has been placed on the list. It is now proposed also to perform "Hamlet" before the close of the season, and to cast him in the part of Hans Sachs in "Die Meistersinger." tehrens, the basso, will be heard for the first time as the High Priest in "The Queen of Sheba" and afterward in "Don Glovanni" and "William Tell" as was reserved for America. These two great artists will appear together for the first time at the concert, in the Metropolitan Opera House to morrow evening. It will be one of the most interesting occurrences of the musical season, and it is pleasant to observe that Mr. Abbey's preparations indicate an intention to make it in all respects worthy of the artists and the public.

The Beethoven Maennerchor will celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of its foundation this evening with a concert, banquet and ball. At the concert Mendelssohn's music to "Antigone" will be performed under the direction of Arthur Mees.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Korbay have projected four recitals of pianoforte music and songs, chronologically arranged, to be given in Chickering it all on the evenings of December 17 and January 14. The recitals will review musical literature from the tenth century down to to-day.

J. W. WOOTEN'S REPLY TO RUMORS ABOUT THAT WORK.

Sir: Replying to the article "Many Prominent Lawyers Swindled," published in your issue of the 14th instant, I desire to say to you, to these very as without authority is false. I not only made contract with "The GrapMe" Publishing Company, the canvass a letter of authorization signed by its business manager, Mr. W. S. Rossiter, This contract, letter and receipts for all moneys paid to weather; said farewell greetings to General Sewell, and then was driven to the Executive Mansion. Loth waiting rooms were crowded with people when the President passed through them, but there was no upon for the publication to begin—the manuscript was upon for the publication to begin-the manuscript was all in and in proper shape, and that it was not printed then was through no fault of mine. Until whole matter had been published at the time, and according to the agreement above-mentioned, nor regarding it. Understanding now the true condition of affairs, and appreciating the light in which stand, I hold myself personally responsible to each stand, I hold myself personany responsible to subscriber to "The New-York Bar in History," am willing and ready to restore to them the amount of their subscription, less the sum paid to "Graphie" and the actual expense incurred in male the solicitations.

J. W. WOOTEN New-York, Nov. 16, 1889.

To the Editor of The Tribune. Sir: I noticed in "Strathmore" that "Oulda" says: I notice from time to time in the daily papers and bear constantly in the conversation of educated people similar expressions. Can it be that common usage has reversed the rule of grammar that applies to this contraction? Or is it still an error beloading to the hear constantly in the conversation of educated people similar expressions. -ARISTOCRATIC BRITONS WELL EMPLOYED.

Sir: Your many readers will be interested in this ittle story. A friend of mine, an old Oxford man. was recently in this country on a visit. During that risit he discovered six old college chums, all sons of artstocratic families, of whom he had not heard for years, engaged in business here. They were exiles hey were to return home. Two are clerks in a lowntown merchant's office; one is a travelling gent; one is a designer in a weil-known furniture ouse, and the other two are salesmen in a drygood house. This may help to dispel the idea of many in this country that Erlish noblemen's sons are unable to do anything but loll about club-, smoke digarettes, and waste their money.

GLANCES HERE AND THERE,

Among the many leading politicians passing through New-York during the week was William McKinley, Jr., of Ohlo, who found pleasant and quiet quarters at the Hamilton, Forty-second-st., and Fifth-ave. Major McKinley takes a hopeful view of the political situation, looks forward tranquilly to the coming contest for the Speakership, and is not in the least disturbed by all this talk of gerrymandering Ohio with which Democrats and their allies of the discontented party are exciting themselves so pleasantly. Even if the trick could be immediately successful, which he does not believe, it would fail of the desired result in his case, and by its obvious unfairness the attempt would eventually recoil upon its authors. Ohio is now fairly divided into districts and the popular majority is fairly represented in the Congressional delegation. Gerry mandering is not only a game that two can play at but more than that it is a game that two can piny as, but more than that it is a game that has never paid the player in any part of this country. Major Mc-Kinley thinks the coming session of Congress, narrow as is the Republican majority, will be fruitful in practical legislation, including a reasonable and fair measure for the revision of the tariff and some broad and well-considered plan for the restoration of the ancient prosperity of American commerce on the seas.

field of Antietam that Private William McKinley, of the 23d Ohio Volunteers, now a leading candidate for the Speakership of the House of Representatives, earned and received his first promotion in the service of the Republic, being made a second-lieutenant for gallantry and good-conduct. Colonel Rutherford B. Hayes commanded the regiment, and General Jacob D. Cox, afterward Governor of Ohio, the Ninth Army orps, to which the regiment belonged. They had had a sharp fight at South Mountain a few days carlier, when the brunt of the action fell on Cox's division, and the lamented Reno, leading the corps. laid down his life. At Antietam they supported the bold and vigorous attack by the two 51sts, of Penn-sylvania and New-York, under Hartranfe and Robert B. Potter, by which the Burnside bridge was finally carried. Ohio has always stool true to her cool soldiers, even as they were loyal to her and to their country.

Almost before the ink was dry with which the warning was uttered in these columns against "the mass of hanging wires" all over the town, one of these treacherous serpents has hissed and sputtered and struck in broad daylight in crowded Wall-st. Beyond nearly frightening a lady out of her wits the thing did no harm. But that was an accident, the thing did no harm. truly an accident. All the arrangements had been perfected for killing somebody-anybody; only, by some unforeseen accident, they failed to work. Why are these hideous and homicidal old wires allowed to hang? And how long are they to dangle, a dangerous nulsance at the best and a daily menace to every passer-by? Nay, worse than that, for no one knows where or at what distance the lightning may strike, when once one of these danglers makes connection with a live wire. A fine specimen may be seen wrigzling with a fine-drawn, if semewhat rusty, metallic successin, on the walls of our ever precious City Hall. It may yet strike a policeman in the eye, P. S.—Hurrah; he has seen it; 'tis gone.

Senator R. F. Pettibone, of South Dakota, who passed through town during the week, spending a day at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, is one of those shrewd, steady, energetic business men whom the West de an almost unfailing success at his back, being re-ported to have accumulated at least a moderate Without prefending to the gifts of oratory or political leadership in the ordinary sense, he is colleagues and who may be said to form the con servative strength of the Senate. Just as the founders ntlemen who would not be seen in the street without creased trousers-four regular creases to th pair, front and back of each leg-kindly impart the Albert coat? If called after Albert the Good, the Prince Consort, The Prince in short (Irrevently called by some cynic churl, The Prink), then a long way after, don't you know, for he has been dead these cight and twenty years. Tell why, and even that listeous crease, that Malay crease, shall be forgivon you; that crease prepense, falsely pretending that you fold them and lay them in a drawer like a true juster now and then in plays "adapted" from the as it has been for years, Miss Vanbrugh tells us, in great fortune by hitting upon a process for extracting vanilla from charcoal and chocolate from burn almonds. "I dare say it's very nice," she goes on to that Athenais (the daughter) always drank cacao." "The Graphic" are now in my possession, and may The last word this charming lady pronounces to rhyme cake-o, or preferably cakay-o (accent on the kay); but let that pass. Now out of the plays and books where the authors have a fancy for administering cacao to the authors have a fancy for administering cacao to their helpless subjects, the English word cacao means the chocolate tree or its nut, and cocoa is the proper as well as the common English name of one of the beverages made from a preparation of that nut, chocolate being another. Nothing to do with the cocoanut, which, as you well know, is the fruit of a paim. When M. Ohnet made Athenais drink cacao he was speaking French.

Another similar blunder, which had a long run, occurred in the version of Sardou's little comedy of "Nos Intimes" familiar to us all at dear old Wallack's under the name of "Bosom Friends." When all rush on to find the lady in a faint, the good doctor (how beautifully John Brougham did (t) suspects that the lover is on the balcony behind the curtains, and that THE RULES OF GRAMMAR HAVE NOT CHANGED. all will be discovered by the husband, about to fly to the window, to admit the fresh air. So the good doctor, seizing at once the idea and his smelling bottle, taps It don't matter how we soil the escutcheon, so we at the reluctant stopper, and cries "Jump out, jump gild over the dirt;" and in "Frederick the Great and His out." Whereupon you hear a crash at the back, in Friends," Mrs. Mulbach puts into the King's mouth dicating that the lover has in fact jumped out, the this expression: "He don't know what he wants."

The little advertisements on the eighth and ninth pages of The Tribune to-day run along the whole gamut of human necessities. They appeal to every condition of man and woman.

THE INSTITUTE EXHIBITION There can be no doubt of the popularity of the American Institute, or of the fair which is annually given under its direction in the Exhibition Hall in Third-ave. Its fifty-eighth exhibition, which was opened early in October, and is to be closed at the end of the present month, is a great success. open day and evening, and the result of the efforts of all concerned in it is an exhibition of great interest. The American Institute has earned its repuopen from the foreneon until night, and there is much to be seen that should not be looked at in a hurry, the fair is a family resert now-a-days, just as it used to be years ago. The chrysanthemims entered for to be years ago. The chrysanthemims entered for the special exhibition, which will be opened on Tuesday, give reason to expect a fine display. Twenty-five cents is the cost of a visit to the fair, flowers and all.

ANOTHER LECTURE BY GEORGE KENNAN. George Kennan, the explorer, will lecture to-night, under the management of Major James B. Pond, in the First Eaptist Church of Brooklyn, on "West Siberian Steppes and Prisons." The proceeds will be devoted to the Brocklyn Women's Homeopathic Hospital and Dispersary.

SHIP TO "DUCK" TO MISS A SHOT.

In each bag are 1,000 sliver dollars, and as these bags are constantly being taken out for the transaction of business, it is necessary that they shall be firm and intext. If the bags on which rain has fallen are allowed to remain in the vaults they will become rotten in a short time. To rebag the sliver will cost at least $10,000, and besides this amount there are other expenses that must be incurred during the work.

To the student of human nature, not less than to the man who has an ungratified wish, the many columns of short advertisements on the eighth and ninth pages of the Tribune this morning will be found brimful of

LAKE ERIE BLOWING AWAY!

From The Buffalo Express. From The Bullato Express.

Won't somebody please tell what has become of the water in the lakes! For two weeks Bugalo suffered from an east wind, and saw her craft dragging on the bottom or waiting heiplessly for the wind to change and bring back the water. Now the westerly wind is playing the same game at the Toledo end of the lake, and complaints of vessels aground fill the marine columns. Where has the water gone? And who is going to devise a plan for saving more of it?

The unique advertisement and remarkable proposi-tion, headed "How Is This?" and made by the well-known humorous paper, "Texas Siftings," in the ad-vertising columns to-day, is well worth reading. There is no fun in it, however. "Siftings" evidently means
